Information in relation to:

Melbourne Declaration on Educational Goals for Young Australians

Proponents need to demonstrate (in the box below and including references to submitted documents) the extent to which their curriculum framework aligns with the Melbourne Declaration on Educational Goals for Young Australians by supporting young people to:

- be successful learners, with specific attention to developing literacy, numeracy and ICT capabilities
- become confident and creative individuals, with specific attention to developing a sense of self-worth, self-awareness and personal identity to manage their emotional, mental, spiritual and physical well-being, and
- become active and informed citizens.

Shape of the Australian Curriculum

- Proponents need to demonstrate (in the box below and including references to submitted documents) the extent to which the curriculum framework meets the principles and guidelines outlined in the Shape of the Australian Curriculum \(2012, v4\) by:
- making it clear to teachers what is to be taught, and to students what they should learn and what achievement is expected of them
- building on the assumptions that all students can learn and setting high standards that apply to all learners while acknowledging the different rates at which students develop
- connecting with and building on the Early Years Learning Framework (if at the appropriate level)
- helping to prepare all young Australians to become fulfilled and competent citizens and workers
- providing students with an understanding of the past that has shaped the society, culture and environment in which they are growing and developing, and with knowledge, understanding and skills that will help them in future.

Curriculum content and achievement standards in areas of learning

- Provide detail including scope and sequence documents about how the curriculum framework addresses the Australian Curriculum content and achievement standards for the relevant learning areas and/or subjects.
- Provide information that will support a reasonable assessment of similarities and differences between the Australian Curriculum learning areas/subjects and the curriculum framework areas and/or subjects for which recognition is sought. Where possible, this information is electronically linked between the submission and the relevant section of the curriculum framework. Do not include detailed programming materials in the submission at this stage.
- Attach a copy of, or a web link to, the curriculum framework areas, and specify relevant publishing details for the curriculum framework so that it can be readily identified and referenced.
